

DCF LENS

One ticker. One valuation.

Every assumption explained.

Every conclusion traced to evidence.

A price is visible.
Its assumptions are not.

01

A stock idea

WHAT CAUGHT YOUR EYE

02

A price target

WHAT THE MODEL SAYS

03

A decision

WHAT CAN YOU DEFEND?

A valuation is only useful when you can examine what produced it.

A useful valuation needs context.

THE COMPANY

Start with its economics.

Sector, cash-flow history, and risk inform the baseline assumptions.

THE EVIDENCE

Keep the source attached.

Facts retain their filing, period, unit, and transformation history.

THE RESULT

A number you can inspect, with assumptions you can question.

Trace the valuation back to facts.

EVERY STEP STAYS VISIBLE

Source facts → baseline → validated changes → valuation impact.

If AI is unavailable or invalid, the deterministic baseline is preserved.

One ticker. A clearer decision.

|----|---------------------|--|
| 01 | WHAT IS IT WORTH? | One intrinsic value estimate, with a range showing sensitivity to assumptions. |
| 02 | WHY THIS NUMBER? | Growth, risk, cash flow, and filing sources stay visible alongside the result. |
| 03 | WHAT NEEDS CAUTION? | A sector-aware ten-point checklist shows support, weak evidence, and missing data. |

Confidence describes evidence and model robustness, not the chance of a return.

AI can adjust. It cannot improvise.

ENFORCED IN CODE

Cited rationale. Validated bounds. Safe fallback.

An inspectable core. Deeper research next.

NOW	VALUATION CORE	SEC facts, adaptive DCF, checklist, and evidence-bound Gemini analysis.
NEXT	FILING CONTEXT	Connect 10-K narrative and subsidiary evidence to the analysis workflow.
LATER	THESIS HISTORY	Save and compare analyses as new filings arrive. A proposed extension.

Keep missing evidence and unresolved disagreement visible.
